

NEW YORK INTERNATIONAL LAW REVIEW ARTICLE SUBMISSION

The New York International Law Review encourages article submissions on topics of interest to members of the Section. Writing an article for a NYSBA Section publication is a great way to get your name out in the legal community and advertise your knowledge. Our authors are respected internationally for their legal expertise. Past issues of the New York International Law Review have included articles on terrorist financing restrictions, NAFTA, violence against women, analysis of the Iraqi special tribunal, foreign direct investments, and criminal justice in Sierra Leone.

MCLE credit may also be earned for legal-based writing directed to an attorney audience upon application to the CLE Board. NYSBA Guidelines for Obtaining MCLE Credit for Writing as well as a Publication Credit Application are available.

If you have written an article and would like to have it considered for publication in the New York International Law Review, please send it in electronic document format (pdfs are NOT acceptable), along with biographical information to its Editor:
