

Life Insurance for Young Professionals

It's never too soon to get covered. See options to fit your budget today.

Today's young professionals change jobs more often than their parents did. And yet having a job is only the first step toward achieving stability. Life insurance has a role to play in your financial life.

Life insurance isn't just for your parents.

If you were to wait until you're up in age, your coverage may be much more expensive, since rates are largely based on the age at which you buy. Plus, your rate can be locked in for a term or time period you select. The younger you are when you buy, the more economical your premium will be—now and into the future. So there's no better time to purchase your coverage than today. When you're young—and maybe even still single—is the best time to begin thinking about building and protecting your financial future.

What insurance is right for you?

Once you've decided to purchase life insurance, you need to find the right coverage amount to help safeguard your financial future. Which products best fit your circumstances? How much coverage do you need? Answering these questions is important, but only part of the challenge. Perhaps most significant is which life insurance company you choose. Policies offered by your group from New York Life Insurance Company not only come from one of the most financially sound life insurance companies around, but are designed with people like you in mind.

What insurance is right for you?

You need life insurance that's economical and flexible to meet your needs — so you can focus on realizing your own goals rather than worrying about the what-ifs.

To find out more including features, costs, eligibility, renewability, limitations, and exclusions about group term life insurance contact:

The NYSBA Insurance Program administered by USI Affinity

1-855-874-1041 | answers@usi.com | www.nysbainsurance.com

