

THE NEW YORK BAR FOUNDATION 2023 ANTITRUST SECTION LAW STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

The New York Bar Foundation is pleased to announce the 2023 Antitrust Section Law Student Fellowship, which has been established by the Foundation through gifts from the Antitrust Section of the New York State Bar Association. The Fellowship will be awarded to up to four current first or second year law students to work on antitrust and related matters in the State of New York during the Summer of 2023.

About Antitrust Law

Antitrust laws prohibit business practices that deprive consumers and businesses of the benefits of competition, including conduct that may result in higher prices for products or harm consumers and businesses by discouraging innovation or depriving them of greater choices. Antitrust laws can be enforced through criminal or civil investigations and cases. Federal and state antitrust agencies have authority to enforce antitrust laws in the U.S. In addition, there are many other countries with antitrust/competition laws. Antitrust investigations often involve consideration of economic relationships among companies and other participants in an industry and overall market dynamics.

Fellowship Program Goals

Provide law students an opportunity to experience antitrust and government investigations practice during the summer after their first or second year of law school and to increase the representation of lawyers from a diverse range of backgrounds in the practice of antitrust law in New York. The ultimate goal of the Fellowship is to forge relationships among antitrust practitioners throughout the State of New York and foster greater diversity in the antitrust bar. Through the Fellowship, a student who has been offered a summer internship position in the New York Office of New York Attorney General, Antitrust Bureau; the Federal Trade Commission, Northeast Region; and/or the Department of Justice Antitrust Division, New York Office will be awarded a stipend and be provided a meaningful and appropriately supervised work experience in the field of antitrust.

About the Antitrust Section of the New York Bar Association

The Antitrust Law section provides a forum in which attorneys and law students can learn about and keep up with developments in competition law and complex litigation generally. The section covers not only U.S. national developments, but also international activity and New York State antitrust enforcement.

Section activities include (1) monthly meetings of the group's Executive Committee, (2) an annual day-long program and series of evening events, held each January in conjunction with the New York State Bar Association's annual meeting, and (3) special programs in the mid-summer and fall.

The Section also has six standing subcommittees, which focus on (1) diversity in the Section, (2) cartel and criminal practice, (3) class actions, (4) coordinated conduct (5) mergers, and (6) unilateral conduct. The subcommittees similarly hold regular meetings, special programs, and brownbag discussions.

Annual Meeting Events:

The Section's annual meeting events consist of topical panels, presented during the day, followed by a reception, dinner and dessert buffet in the evening. The evening events are attended by roughly 350 persons, and the day events by about 100.

Other Section Activities:

The Executive Committee's monthly meetings handle regular business, followed by a one-hour speaker's presentation. These monthly programs cover a wide-range of subjects, which recently have included the law of "nascent competition," antitrust enforcement in Europe, the government's first challenge to a merger through arbitration, and how COVID-19 has affected the anti-trust landscape. Some of these programs offer CLE credit at no charge. The Section also sponsors a Summer merger program and a Fall program on varying topics, and periodically co-sponsors special programs.

The programs are open to Section members and non-members alike.

The Section also sponsors a yearly writing competition open to students at law schools located in New York, and to New York state residents in law schools outside the State. The student whose paper is selected as the winning entry receives a $5000 award.

Additional Information:

There are more than 525 members of the Antitrust Section, and roughly 60 Executive Committee members. The Section's website is located at:

<http://www.nysba.org/anti>

The website is regularly updated to link to materials presented at the Section's programs, and to competition law developments generally.
