2026 GLOBAL CONFERENCE IN BUENOS AIRES

"Global Regulation, Governance, and Dispute Resolution: The Future of Legal Practice"

October 21-23, 2026
Av. Leandro N. Alem 882
Buenos Aires, Argentina

https://nysba.org/international-section-2026-global-conference-in-buenos-aires/

Who are we? New York State Bar Association and the International Section

The New York State Bar Association (NYSBA) is the largest voluntary state bar organization in the United States and has members across the globe that have a nexus to New York law.

The International Section is one of NYSBA's most active sections having over 2,000 members internationally with chapters in more than 70 countries worldwide and is NYSBA's global representative and international advocate for the rule of law.

In addition, the NYSBA International Section brings members together to discuss and influence the resolution of key legal practice issues before local, state, national and international policy makers. Members include legal professionals from major international law firms, multi-national corporations, and other organizations that influence, and are influenced by, international law.

What is the Global Conference?

Each year, NYSBA's International Section hosts a conference in a different city outside of the United States to provide American and foreign colleagues the opportunity to meet, network, and expand their international practices. Our most recent conferences have been held in Hamburg (2025), Seoul (2024), Mexico (2023), London (2022), New York City (2022), Tokyo, (2019), Montréal (2018), Antigua (2017), Paris (2016), São Paulo (2015), Vienna (2014), Hanoi (2013), Lisbon (2012), and Panama (2011).

Buenos Aires Conference Overview

The NYSBA International Section Buenos Aires Global Conference 2026 brings together legal professionals, regulators, financial institutions, bar associations, and industry leaders and insiders from across the Americas to examine the evolving regulatory, governance, and professional challenges shaping cross-border legal practice.

This 3-day conference contains high-level plenary discussions and substantive and practical panels with a strong focus on regulatory alignment, professional responsibility, technology, environmental disclosures, and the future of the legal profession. The meeting also offers networking opportunities in the form of extended breaks, luncheons, receptions, and dinners.

What will I get from participating?

The Global Conference offers participants opportunities to:

- Attend programs with faculty foremost in their fields who will address both legal and professional issues and their impact on international practices;
- Earn Continuing Legal Education (CLE) credits for New York-licensed attorneys
- Exchange ideas and strategies with other professionals on an informal basis; and
- Meet and network with key players from leading international firms and businesses who share common interests and concerns relating to international legal practice.

Shifts in monetary policy, foreign exchange regulation, capital

	flows, trade priorities, and public policy are directly influencing how companies, investors, and financial institutions assess risk and opportunity across the region. Designed as a strategic opening to the conference, this plenary will introduce attendees to the broader forces influencing cross-border legal practice in the region, from investment trends and financial regulation to institutional stability and dispute risk. By bringing together voices from outside the legal profession as well as the legal community, the session will offer a broader perspective on the challenges and opportunities defining the next phase of U.S.–Latin America economic relations. Moderator: Andrew D. 9:00 AM – 10:15 AM	PLENARY II | Main Auditorium (Lower Level) The Foundations of the Rules-based International Order, and the Evolution of Private International Law This plenary session examines the evolving foundations of the rules-based international order and its intersection with private international law at a moment of fundamental global shifts. Panelists will discuss authoritarian impulses challenging the democratic gains of the "third wave of democracies" and unilateral state actions (including extraterritorial regulatory reach). Additionally, the panelists will address the limits of sovereign authority across jurisdictions as practitioners and scholars grapple with fundamental questions about the future of cross-border legal frameworks. The panel brings together perspectives from Brazil, Argentina, and the United States to explore how the rule of law operates in practice: from the enforceability of foreign-law-governed agreements in domestic courts, to the regulatory challenges posed by crypto assets and digital financial products, to the enduring role of international institutions in fostering cooperation even in a fragmented geopolitical landscape. Drawing on both public and private international law traditions, the discussion will consider how individuals, companies, and civil society organizations can continue to operate, transact, and flourish across borders — and what legal and institutional conditions are necessary to sustain that freedom. Moderator: Prof. Azish E. PANEL 10 | Main Auditorium (Lower Level) Latin American Merger Control Under Fire: How is Antitrust Influencing the M&A Activity in the Region? Latin American antitrust enforcement faces several challenges: lack of a unified regulatory body, very different approaches to enforcement by regulators and even different ultimate goals when enforcing policy. Merger control is a clear example of that: when planning for a multi-j filing strategy across Latin America, the strategies significantly change when taking into account that some regulators may have complex economic analysis, others may have a focus on more traditional approaches and there may be others in which non-antitrust issues may be key for clearance. The panel will cover Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Chile and Uruguay to analyze their significant developments in recent years regarding mergers, both from a substantive and procedural perspective. These developments are undoubtedly of interest to those who analyze multi-jurisdictional mergers, but also to those who do so from a local perspective, as these realities and experiences can be perfectly applicable to the reality of other countries. The purpose of this panel is to clearly present the experience that relevant jurisdictions have had in recent years	PANEL 11 | Room 3 (13th Floor) Cross-Border Litigation Tools for Success: Strategy and Tactics for Winning International Disputes The panel will discuss cross-border litigation, focusing first on the strategic considerations of choice of law, jurisdiction and venue, and second on tactical issues that typically arise. The panel will explore how to craft a solid strategy to bring a case or defend a claim, including considerations of applicable law, jurisdictional considerations, and future enforceability. The panel will discuss the factors involved in managing cross-border litigation, such as ensuring the availability of witnesses, electronic document preservation and production, and foreign discovery. Panelists: Rafael Alves Partner, Souto Correa Advogados, Brazil Alejo M. Some of the questions raised are: • Who owns the output of AI? How can AI be owned? How can AI be used to generate IP? • Can AI output be protected? Are humans necessary? Does the protection of AI change among different IP – patents, trademarks, copyrights, trade secrets, designs and data? • What is the current state of copyright infringement for training AI models? Fair use? Moral rights? • Can the output be licensed? Who can license and what can be licensed? • What issues arise in performing IP due diligence for licensing and for M&A? Panelists: Sergio M. Ellmann

PANEL 13 | Main Auditorium (Lower Level) Beyond Borders: Immigration, Tax, and Global Mobility Strategies in a Changing World Global mobility has become a critical component of strategic planning for companies and individuals, shaping how they structure operations, careers, and investments across jurisdictions. Immigration is no longer limited to visa processes—it now intersects with employment, tax planning, and investment strategies, particularly in light of evolving U.S. immigration policies and increasing regulatory challenges. This panel will explore how businesses and professionals are navigating these dynamics, highlighting the immigration and tax implications of global mobility and comparing attractive relocation destinations such as	PANEL 14 | Room 3 (13th Floor) Banco Masters Scandal: Its Impact on Rule of Law, Democracy and the Independence of the Judiciary Participants will hear from the lead defense attorney, Davi Tangerino about the Banco Masters Scandal, the largest legal/political investigation into the CEO's of two of the largest banks in Brazil, Banco Master and Bank Regional Brazilia (BRB), and their business dealings which lead to investigations into some of the highest ranking government officials and Justices in Brazil and its impact on the Rule of Law, Democracy and the Independence of the Judiciary. We will use this case to frame a discussion on the global conversation of a lawyer's role in protecting the rule of law and democracy.	PANEL 15 | Room 1 (13th Floor) Restrictions on Foreign Ownership of Rural Land Countries in North America and Latin America impose legal restrictions on the acquisition of rural real estate by foreign persons (both individuals and legal entities). National security, territorial sovereignty, and food security are among the main policy reasons underlying these limitations. All investors should be aware of the existence of such restrictions, as non-compliance may generally result in undesirable legal consequences, including the nullity of the acquisition. The purpose of this panel is to describe, in certain relevant jurisdictions, the existing limitations and how they must be

The Defense Industry, The Sleeping Giant Is Wide Awake

The accelerated increase in public procurement of defense capacities (and, accordingly, the relevant public funds dedicated to this sector) driven by the threat of conflict have sparked a dormant industry with cross border contracts and regulation around the world. However, the defense industry is a heavily regulated and supervised industry that presents challenges in certified manufacturing, regulated sales to governments by private stakeholders that must be sanctioned by other governments and sanctions among trading blocks that must be carefully overseen, and the need of security and sustainability of the supply chain. The financing associated with said spending also spurs challenges for lenders, takers of loans and suppliers. Public procurement, international trade of weapons and double use equipment, anti-corruption, foreign direct investment regulations and foreign direct investment oversight in M&A, anti-trust, tariffs on raw materials and tight oversight from minerals to final product and further scrutinized by public watchdogs. These are the challenges that defense industry lawyers and the practitioners that advise them face, whether they are the established industry powerhouses or industry start-up newcomers, as well as the VC and PE funds that invest in them. This panel will discuss the delicate balance of a sprawling industry that had been a sleeping giant for many years.

International Arbitration in a Changing World: Energy Transition and Investment Disputes

As global demand for energy and critical minerals accelerates, governments and investors are navigating an increasingly complex regulatory and geopolitical landscape. Large-scale investments in mining, infrastructure, and energy projects—particularly in emerging markets—are giving rise, or are likely to give rise, to new disputes and arbitration claims.

This panel will examine recent developments in international arbitration, focusing on disputes arising from energy transition policies, critical mineral projects, and shifting regulatory frameworks. Panelists will discuss emerging trends in investor–state and commercial arbitration and the challenges facing both investors and states in this evolving environment.

The Growth of Asian Investment in the Americas – What has Changed and What has Not Commerce between the Americas and the Asia-Pacific region has always been active, in a wide variety of areas, including manufactured goods and capital investment from the Asia-Pacific region into the Americas, and agricultural products and natural resources from the Americas to the Asia-Pacific region. However, the nature of the commerce, the types of goods imported and exported, and the relative roles of various countries (with the added twist in recent years of rapidly evolving international tariff regimes) have constantly changed.

The panelists will discuss select topics in this area and make some general observations on the state of the current legal and commercial relationship between the Americas and the Asia-Pacific region.

PANEL 25 | Main Auditorium (Lower Level) Ethics, AI, and Cybersecurity: The Intelligence May Be Artificial, but the Ethical Issues Are Real The number of court cases involving lawyers presenting non-existent cases and quotations to tribunals is well over 2,000 and growing daily. Many lawyers seem to remain oblivious to the unreliability of AI-generated content and to the implications of using public-facing generative AI tools for confidentiality and privilege. Moreover, lawyers and law firms continue to be regular targets of cybercriminals, because of the value of client data that they are required by ethical rules to keep confidential and private. The advent of hacking tools powered by artificial intelligence makes defending against these attacks increasingly challenging. Legal risk management and ethical compliance need to adapt rapidly to deal with new threats, to comply with changing multinational artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, and data privacy regulation, and to understand how to use new AI-powered technology safely. Methods for meeting ethical and compliance obligations must change to stay current as well. This panel will focus on what ethical obligations must be met in addressing these issues; what policies must lawyers follow to use artificial intelligence tools safely and ethically; what are the risks of failing to understand the technology they use, including generative AI; and what are the potential costs to lawyers, law firms, and clients of failing to take adequate security measures? Panelists: Jonathan Armstrong Partner, Punter Southall Law, U.K.	PANEL 26 | Room 3 (13th Floor) Labor Law Reforms in LATAM: Developments, Trends, and Challenges Throughout the session, the panel will address the main recent regulatory changes and ongoing reform initiatives across the region, with a particular focus on key areas such as outsourcing, termination of employment and severance, collective bargaining, among others. It will also examine emerging regulatory trends related to platform work, remote work, and the increasing cross-border nature of employment relationships. From a comparative perspective — highlighting contrasting regulatory approaches— the panelists will analyze how different Latin American jurisdictions are responding to the challenges of competitiveness, informality, and labor market modernization. In this context, the discussion will assess the practical impact of these reforms on labor litigation, legal certainty, and corporate decision-making. Moderator: Rodrigo Solá Torino Partner, Marval O'Fairrel Mairal, Argentina Panelists: Domingos Fortunato Partner, Mattos Filho, Brazil Ignacio García Partner, Porzio Rios Garcia, Santiago, Chile Rafael Vallejo Gil Partner, Von Wobeser y Sierra, S.C., México	PANEL 27 | Room 1 (13th Floor) Therapeutic Jurisprudence (TJ) in Practice: Transforming the Legal Profession, Evolving Legal Systems This panel invites lawyers interested in professional development to explore TJ as a practical, ready-to-apply framework for both personal growth and systemic reform. We will have the opportunity to discuss how legal rules, procedures, and legal professions' roles impact those involved in legal processes, and how they can be shaped to produce more humane outcomes without compromising due process. Moving beyond theory, the panel highlights how TJ can be integrated into daily practice— from litigation to transactional work— in different legal roles. For example, a law clerk applying TJ principles in her daily work may improve judicial communication and reduce lawyers and litigants stress. It also examines how TJ supports values-driven lawyers' professional identity development, emphasizing the role of bar associations as key institutional actors in shaping professional identity through continuing legal education, ethical guidance and mentorship structures. Attendees will gain practical insight into how being exposed to TJ principles, including TJ in a law firm's culture and adopting TJ in daily practice can enhance professional effectiveness, deepen sense of purpose, and contribute to more responsive and efficient systems of justice.

PANEL 28 | Main Auditorium (Lower Level) AI Governance and Regulation: Emerging Markets and Consumer Protection Considerations This panel is a discussion of comparative AI regulation and its impact on the development of AI technologies and platforms, particularly in emerging markets across Africa, Europe and South Asia. The aftermath of these largely publicized cases raises many issues for individuals targeted by the internal investigations that ultimately led to such prosecution agreements in which they were stigmatized. This panel will discuss whether negotiated corporate resolutions and company-led internal	PANEL 30 | Room 1 (13th Floor) Practicing Law in the Age of AI: A Young Lawyer's Perspective Artificial intelligence is rapidly changing not only how legal work is performed, but also how the next generation of attorneys will be trained, evaluated, and expected to practice. Developed by NYSBA's Young Lawyers Section, this panel will examine AI's impact on the legal profession from the perspective of young and emerging practitioners. Panelists will discuss how AI may reshape entry-level roles and the legal job screening, housing, policing, and lending (among other topics).

The legislative response from the U.S. and Europe will be considered, including whether those efforts are sufficient to address concerns stemming from AI usage in developing nations. Particular emphasis will be put on the necessary components of global and international responses, such as a global transparency framework to ensure accountability, visibility into AI decision-making, and equitable standards across jurisdictions.

investigations can still protect fair process for individuals once corporate cooperation, internal evidence-gathering, and factual admissions in differed prosecution agreements help shaping later prosecutions against these individuals. Among other questions, this panel will examine (i) how modern internal investigations increasingly sit at the crossroads of settlement strategy, compliance remediation, and criminal defense, (ii) whether a company's understandable interest in securing a negotiated outcome with public authorities/prosecutors can distort the search for truth when the same internal investigation frames allegations against executives, employees, or third party individuals, and (iii) whether efficiency, remediation, and increasingly coordinated cross-border law enforcement can be reconciled with adversarial fairness for individuals and credible truth-finding for jurisdictions. Whether you are working in-house, as defense attorneys, whether you are investigating or are prosecuting such cases, the international dimension of this topic makes it all the more relevant since across the world anticorruption authorities and law enforcement (e.g. the DOJ and SEC in the US, the SFO in the UK, the PNF and AFA in France) promote self-reporting, remediation, leniency, and whistleblowing, while privilege, access-to-file, inspection powers, and defense safeguards remain materially different across jurisdictions.

market; the challenges of developing sound judgment and core lawyering skills when technology can perform—or appear to perform—traditional junior-level work; and evolving client expectations regarding speed, cost, and efficiency. The discussion will also address clients' increasing use and misuse of AI for legal advice, along with practical concerns surrounding accuracy, confidentiality, privacy, and responsible use. Track 1 (Transactional)	Track 2 (Litigation)	Track 3 (Other Topics)
PANEL 31 | Main Auditorium (Lower Level) Governing the Machine: AI Integration, Governance & Regulatory Strategy for International Law Firms The panel addresses how international law firms can integrate AI in a way that is strategically sound, operationally effective, ethically compliant, and regulatory-ready across multiple jurisdictions, with particular emphasis on the fast-evolving Latin American regulatory landscape (Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Argentina, and Chile) alongside the EU AI Act and US guidance such as ABA Formal Opinion 512. It frames the topic as urgent, driven by AI's rapid capability gains, an accelerating and inconsistent patchwork of regulation, and growing client demands for transparency that many firms cannot yet meet. Substantively, the session moves from practice self-assessment (identifying AI needs and risks before tool selection) through building internal governance architecture (use policies, attorney supervision under Model Rule 5.3, audit trails, client disclosure, and intake/billing integration), cross-jurisdictional regulatory navigation, and practical implementation strategy, closing with a law practice management segment on AI-ready firms. It is designed to be highly interactive using live polling, small-group exercises, real-world scenario analysis, and Q&A woven throughout, and is intended to serve both first-time, single-jurisdiction practitioners and managing partners of multinational firms. Panelists: Itzik Amiel Founder & CEO, THE SWITCH, Netherlands	PANEL 32 | Room 3 (13th Floor) From Compliance to Litigation: Privacy Enforcement and Emerging Risks Across Jurisdictions Data privacy has moved well beyond compliance functions. Decisions involving the collection, use, sharing and protection of personal data are increasingly giving rise to regulatory investigations, private litigation, class actions and other forms of legal exposure. This panel will examine how privacy enforcement and litigation are developing across different jurisdictions, comparing the roles of regulators, courts and private litigants and the different enforcement models available in each legal system. Using recent cases and practical fact patterns, panelists will explore how similar conduct may lead to different legal consequences depending on the jurisdiction. The discussion will address emerging areas of privacy risk, including transparency and consent, tracking technologies and third-party vendors, sensitive and biometric data, security incidents, and the growing intersection between privacy and artificial intelligence. Panelists will also consider what recent enforcement actions and litigation can teach organizations about identifying and mitigating privacy risks before they develop into disputes. Moderator: Jay G. This panel examines the seam between the two. Panelists will address where New York documentation does the work it promises, where it depends on local law to have any effect, and how practitioners bridge the gap in practice rather than in theory. This panel will bring together practitioners from New York, Mexico, Bolivia and Chile to discuss the practical challenges that arise throughout the life cycle of cross-border financings. The discussion will address financing structures and market trends, collateral and security interests, insolvency and competing bankruptcy regimes, foreign exchange and regulatory considerations, due diligence, and the role of multilateral and development finance institutions. Panelists will also explore emerging structures and asset classes, including U.S. capital markets refinancings, digital infrastructure and other innovative financing models, highlighting how local market realities interact with New York-law expectations. Moderator: José Ricardo de Bastos Martins Partner, MartinsVillac Advogados, Brazil
